PROFILE

Throughout my career I have worn many different hats – Head of Digital, Project Manager, Digital Consultant, Account Manager, Product Manager, Designer and general digital evangelist.

In my current position, I work within the management team reporting directly to the MD promoting best practice across all digital marketing and development projects. I also play a key role in all new business pitches and tenders producing the documents and presenting to senior stakeholders at tier 1 brands. Managing and developing the people within my team is a top priority.

I take a cradle to grave approach with all projects; from creating a range of digital tactics to clients and taking the initial brief through to working directly with all team members to produce high quality work to budget and spec.
